The echo state property: the reservoir’s memory of an input fades with time fixed random reservoir: state r(t) echo state property: the influence of the initial state and the distant past vanishes memory is fading and finite: its capacity grows with reservoir size